Matthew

Chapter 18

1 At the same time came the disciples unto Jesus, saying, Who is the greatest in the kingdom of heaven?

2 And Jesus called a little child unto him, and set him in the midst of them,

3 And said, Verily I say unto you, Except ye be converted, and become as little children, ye shall not enter into the kingdom of heaven.

4 Whosoever therefore shall humble himself as this little child, the same is greatest in the kingdom of heaven.

5 And whoso shall receive one such little child in my name receiveth me.

10 Take heed that ye despise not one of these little ones; for I say unto you, That in heaven their angels do always behold the face of my Father which is in heaven.

As we look closer into the beautiful eyes of this angel John Michael, Mathew reminds us to see the clear reflection of God and believe there is some magical, mystical link between (his) precious life and God's purposeful call to the greater good, to the promise of everlasting peace and joy, and His intention for all us.

If you shed tears for this angel child, do so not because of his passing, but because we rejoice in the Love of his ascension to eternal life. For he now awakes and sleeps in the comfort of God and the angels, with our Christian family, forevermore. Never any suffering, pain, or agony, only joy. His fulfillment brings hope.

See the joy in his face; understand its deeper meaning in our lives; feel the joy as it transfers from a photograph to your heart. Then, take it with you, in your mind and heart; cherish it with families just as Jesus instructed. Humility is the key for adults.

“Now take from me all earthly raiment and place me deep in my mother Earth And place me with care upon my (grandmother's Karen's) breast. Cover me with soft earth and let each handful be mixed with seeds of jasmine, lilies, and myrtle; and when they grow above me and thrive on my body's essence, they will Breathe fragrances of my heart into space; reveal even to the sun the secret of my peace. Leave me to God. (For) I am in comfort, in exact harmony, with the spirit's desires; I am in peace."

K. Gibran

Your immediate family will always love you, and we know we shall look into your beautiful eyes once again!
