“ Mr Wayne had a favorite story he enjoyed telling folks at Surf City Family Campground...especially during porch time in the late afternoon.. He was the only one who could tell it so it was hilarious. Seems Mr. Wayne had a heifer that had a bit of a mean streak in her. One day he was moving cows around and this one heifer wouldn't go where he wanted her to go. He turned his back on her for a few seconds and she charged him. She knocked him on his butt. A little sore, but nothing major hurt except his pride. Mr. Wayne was one of those people who lived by the mantra, "I might not be able to stop you, but I can sure god break you from the habit". The next day Mr. Wayne hooked up his trailer, loaded his head strong heifer up, and off to market she went. We remember fondly the hours we spent with Mr. Wayne, Janice and Brittany on the beach. Such good times, and Mr. Wayne could keep you laughing. For now, RIP my friend, "and we'll tell you all about it, when we see you again".
